General Miscellany.

Pen-Photographs of Senators.

"Dixon," the Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, gives the following sketch of the scene in the Senate just before the vote was taken against impeachment, on Saturday:

The occupants of the galleries looking down upon the floor five minutes before the court opened seemed chiefly anxious to find Mr. Ross, and to point out Messrs. Fessenden and Trumbull, and the vacant chair of Messrs. Gilman and Howard. Mr. Fessenden sat erect and calm-faced except for that curious twitching in the muscles about his mouth—the sure indication with him that thought and feeling are both very busy.

Mr. Trumbull was at the old habit of his moods of mental activity and bodily inactivity, tearing a sheet of paper into strips and then tearing the strips into bits, falling like snow flakes about his chair. Reverdy Johnson was at one of his characteristic habits, too, sitting far down in his chair, with his hands to his face, and apparently chewing his tongue. Mr. Seward's peculiar habit is to walk up and down in the area back of the desks; for a wonder, he now sat in his chair, bearing little traces of the condition in which he must have been the other night when it is reported he swore a great oath and said he believed he should have to vote with the Radicals for conviction.

Mr. Wilson was the doleful man of the hour; his face, when one could see it, was pitiful as that of a broken hearted lover. Mr. Chandler looked decidedly indifferent, and it may safely be imagined that he thought less of Mr. Ross than of Mr. Fessenden. Poor Ross was uncomfortable enough, anybody could readily see that; he sat uneasily in his chair; ordinarily the most quiet of men, he had difficulty now in keeping in one position two minutes at a time.

He is a little fellow, of small intellectual calibre, who has won the good will of his people by a modest and pleasant demeanor, rather than by any higher qualities. Nine or ten years ago he was foreman of a printing office in Milwaukee; he entered the army during the war as a private and left it as a major; when Senator Lane made a vacancy by committing suicide, the Governor of Kansas appointed Major Ross to serve until the legislature met, he himself expecting an election to the place.

But Ross had ambition of his own, and, quite to the astonishment of everybody and the perfect amazement of the Governor, he managed through his friends to carry the Legislature, and get the seat against the Governor. If a tenth part of the reports now current about him are true, he is likely before the end of this week to get a most ignominious notoriety.

British Brutality in the Abyssinian Campaign.

The Pall Mall Gazette gives the following illustration of the stupid brutality exercised by the British officers in the Abyssinian campaign:

"One day about one hundred and fifty of the Turkish and Egyptian mule drivers came up jabbering to an officer who could not understand them, and reported it as a case of mutiny. Forthwith two companies of infantry were sent down, and sixty of the Turks were tied up to the triangles and got fifty lashes each. It then leaked out that the poor wretches had been three days without rations and were only complaining."

On this Punch thus comments:

"The truth is, that for all the pluck and practical good sense over which he is so ready to hug himself, John Bull is too often the most offensive of snobs—brutal, pig-headed and blundering—as odious a creature, altogether, as any that lives; a being to blush over, and to repent in sack-cloth and ashes for. Here assuming this story to be true—the 'miserable creature' element, which is one of the odious ingredients in John Bull's character, is in the ascendant; and the worst of the thing is, that nobody hesitates about believing such a story. It is in fact only a reproduction, on a large scale, of the blundering cruelty and overbearing stupidity which mark the dealing of your English snob with 'niggers,' wherever he has authority over them. Only of your English snob, however, happily there is your English gentleman to trim the scales. But then your 'snob' is so frightfully frequent in this blessed country. Is there any country under the sun so overrun with snobs—any other where the snob is to be found, rampant, in all ranks, classes, callings, and in such force that he often determines their tone and establishes their laws. We doubt it."

THE VERMONT MEDICAL SOCIETY.—One of the prominent features of the Vermont Medical Society, at Windsor, June 10th and 11th, is to be a social reunion on Wednesday evening of members of the profession, natives of Vermont, and residents of other States, and it is designed to make this a prominent feature of the gathering, all physicians, natives of the Green Mountain State, who have been dispersed around the globe, are cordially invited to be present.

JOB

Printing

OFFICE,

ST. ALBANS.

H. A. CUTLER, -- PROPRIETOR.

All Printing brought to this Office, both Plain and Ornamental, will meet with prompt attention, at prices as low as the times will admit.

We do our work much better than can any Office that will do a job of printing for nothing for the sake of depriving us of it, and we are ready to compare our work with any similar class of printing done in the cities, both in neatness and price.

Hand your orders into the Transcript Book and Job Printing Establishment if you take any pride in having your printing done in a workmanlike manner.

THE AMERICAN COOKING STOVE IN COURT.

At an adjourned term of the Circuit Court of the United States, for the Northern District of New York, in the second circuit, held at the City Hall, in the city of Albany, the 28th day of January, in the year of our Lord 1868.

PRESENT:
THE HON. NATHAN K. HALL, Judge,
JACOB H. SHEAR & JOSEPH PACKARD, Jr.,
Geo. B. BULL & JOHN M. ROCKWELL, Esq.,
In Equity.

It is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, that a perpetual injunction be issued in this suit against the defendants, restraining them from further infringement of said Patent, No. 51,406, Dated Dec. 3th, 1865, for improvements in cooking stoves, pursuant to and in accordance with the prayer of the Bill of Complaint.

Signed A. A. Boyce, Clerk.

The above was instituted for infringement of the Patent securing the manner of fitting the ash pan in the hearth of the American Cooking Stove, and for the combination of the braided ash pan. We have repeatedly cautioned the public against selling or using stoves with these improvements not manufactured by us. All persons now selling or using stoves with these improvements in violation of the above injunction, without license from us, will be liable to fine and imprisonment. SHEAR, PACKARD & CO.,
